$\mathcal{L}_{\text{New}} TREVIA^{^{\text{TM}}}$

The beauty and timeless appearance of Trevia™ was inspired by the natural flagstone created by millenniums of seismic activity and geological rock formation. Trevia's advantage over natural stone lies in its beauty, strength, and consistency. Since there are only two unit sizes, installation is quick and uncomplicated. The surface appearance has been altered over six units to provide a natural looking surface design and to minimize pattern repetition.

PERMEABLE

LEADING THE WAY IN ENVIRONMENTAL PAVING

Unilock pioneered the concept of permeable paving in North America before it was even fashionable to be "green." Our international alliances in Europe have been actively using permeable pavements for more than 20 years. Unilock eagerly embraced this new concept and began to introduce this to North American designers, planners and engineers. To date, Unilock has had more than 12 million square feet of permeable pavers installed into commercial and residential applications, making us the uncontested leader in permeable paving. The environmental benefits are so significant that residential applications of permeable pavements are being promoted by municipalities and government officials. Permeable pavements in residential applications can easily be combined with rainwater harvesting systems for outdoor seasonal uses as well.

This small plant symbol indicates that the Unilock product you are looking at, facilitates the penetration of water through the surface into the ground below.

Permeable Pavement Innovation

Traditional urban construction practices have historically diverted rainwater into storm sewers and ultimately into streams, rivers and lakes. This diversion of rainwater has resulted in overtaxed sewer systems, as well as chemically and thermally polluted waters. Today, responsible urban design and best management practices include methods to return rainwater back into the ground on site. Unilock has been at the forefront of this best practice through the introduction and development of permeable paver systems. These systems employ the use of wider joints between pavers that are filled with small stone chips to allow rapid water penetration.

Illustration of the Unilock Permeable Pavement System.

Unilock "Eco" products have an increased joint spacing that allows rapid rainwater infiltration.

Benefits of permeable paving

- reduced stormwater load
- eliminates thermal pollution of streams and rivers
- filters contaminants from water naturally
- replenishes the water table important for trees
- enables rainwater to be easily harvested for later use
